-The wedding last evening of General John G. Foster to Miss Annie Davis attracted more than the usual amount of interest. At an early hour St. Matthew's Church was filled by those who held eards of admission. In front of the church and on the portico the crowd was so great as almost to prevent an entrance. The bridal party were prompt, and reached the church punctually at 8 p. m. The first brides maid and groomsman were Miss McIntyre and Col. The queenly bride, in a robe of the richest white silk, trimmed with illusion, flowing weil enveloping her person, was a nicture of beauty enveloping her person, was a picture of beauty and grace. The handsome groom looked well in the dress of a general of engineers. It was a beautiful spectacle as the bridal party assembled around the altar, which was brilliant with innu-merable candles. The ceremony was performed by Father White, who took advantage of the by Father White, who took advantage of the occasion to express the views of the Catholic church about the sanctity of marriage and the impossibility of obtaining a divorce. He also repeated the scriptural commands about women obeying their husbands. The bridal party passed well through the ordeal of the sermon before the business for which they came was transacted. Both bride and groom answered in clear, distinct tones the questions which were clear, distinct tones the questions which were asked. The ceremony concluded, the bridal party left the church and proceeded to the residence of Mr. L. J. Davis, the bride's brother, where only the family and a few intimate friends called to pay their respects. This morning General and Mrs. Foster left for Philadelphia, New York and Boston. They will return in about ten days, and will spend the winter at the Arlington.

This is a national affair, and our city doubly so, and a few should not be made to pay, and will not. All local governments make such appropriations, and why should not ours? This is a grand occasion, and should be met as such. We have taken an advance step, do not let us go back. The display is not for a few, it is for the entire city, for all the people, and the people expected, and are doubtless willing to pay for it. TANT REGULATION RELATIVE TO THEIR CUS-TODY.—One of the recommendations of the committee (consisting of two well-known bankers and five Treasury experts) appointed to examine the office of the Treasurer of the United States last winter, was to the effect that the revenue and surplus fund (i. e., notes and securities kept on hand to replace old and mutilated ones redeemed and destroyed,) should be separated from the current cash of the office and placed in the joint custody of two or more offices. This has now been done, the Secretary of the Treasurer. has now been done, the Secretary of the Treasury having yesterday given the necessary instructions placing said surplus fund in the joint custody of a gentleman from each of the offices of the Secretary, the Treasurer, and the Register of the Treasury. This change will greatly simplify future examinations of the Treasurer's office, and will afford an additional and effective check against the illegal use of any of the moneys pertaining to the revenue fund. Last winter the services of thirty expert counters were required for two months to make the investigation of the Treasurer's office. Under the new system a similar investigation could be completed in a few days, with the same force.

"THE JEFF. DAVIS MONEY" AGAIN-A Rule Served on the Secretary of the Treasury for the Facts in the Case - A rule issued by the U. S.

Facts in the Case.—A rule issued by the U.S. fouri of claims has been served on the Secretary of the Treasury by Judge Joseph Casey, counsel for the Bank of Louisiana, calling upon him to show whether there were captured in Georgia in April, 1865, by the union army, sixty kegs of gold coins, partly American coins and partly Spanish coins, or any less number of kegs of such coin, and whether the same were returned to, and deposited in, the treasury of the United States; whether any such kegs of the same kind of gold coins were captured in or near Richmond after the surrender of that city to the United States forces, about the same time; Richmond after the surrender of that city to the United States forces, about the same time; whether there were captured in Georgia, at Richmond, or at any other place, at or about the time mentioned, two hundred and seventeen boxes of silver coins, containing respectively about $1,000 each; directing the Secretary to return to the U.S. court of claims a full and true copy of the returns, reports and history of ownership and capture by the U.S. officers or agents given of or accompanying or following the said kegs and boxes of gold and silver coins, and the marks, names, places or other designaand the marks, names, places or other designa-tion on said kegs and boxes, when they came to the said department; also, directing him to re-port to the court what disposition has been made of said gold and silver coins; when and by whose order it was made, and if the same have in any manner been disposed of, and by what right, order, or authority the same was done. It will be remembered that in 1866 claim was laid to this money (about $100,000) by certain Virginia and Louisiana banks, who claimed that was their property, and not the property of the confederate states. Treasurer Spinner insisted upon a particular description of the captured coin, which, it seems, could not be given. Subsequently Secretary McCulloch, by order of President Johnson, directed Treasurer Spinner to turn over the money to the claimant. to turn over the money to the claimants, but on consultation with Secretary Stanton, he refused to do so, and soon after had the bullion coined. At the Treasurer's instance Congress passed a resolution approved March 22d, 1867, ordering that this money be govered into the Treasurer that this money be covered into the Treasury by warrant. This was done, and the captured coin and bullion no longer forms a separate fund. Secretary Boutwell has referred the rule of the court to Treasurer Spinner, and the latter in turn refers him to the letter which he wrote in 1905 of this secretary and the latter of the court to Treasurer Spinner, and the latter in turn refers him to the letter which he wrote in 1905 of this secretary and the latter of the latter of the latter of the letter which he wrote in 1905 of the latter of the latt in turn refers him to the letter which he wrote in 1866, giving an account of the capture of the property, and his reasons for believing it to be the property of the confederate states, and not the property of banks or individuals. General Spinner claims that Congress having by resolu-tion disposed of the matter, is the only power that can grant relief. THE SUDDEN DEATH OF LOUIS NAPOLEON.

Further Particulars by Cable. The sudden death of the ex-Emperor Napoleon, it seems, took everybody at Chiselhurst as well as London by surprise. Cable dispatches received after we went to press yesterday state that the relatives, attendants and household, and even the physicians were unprepared for it. The Emperor had passed a comparatively easy night, his strength seemed undiminished, and at the consultation early in the morning it was thought that he could bear the third operation, which was fully determined upon. So great was the confidence felt in the patient's condition that the prince imperial was permitted to return to Woolwich to resume his studies. Dr. Sul went to London, and many of the Emperor's personal friends, who hastened to Chiselhurst at the first alarm, returned to their homes. There was no reason to apprehend anything fatal in the case up to 9 a. m., when

NEW AND DANGEROUS SYMPTOMS set in. The Emperor's vital forces seemed to set in. The Emperor's vital forces seemed to leave him all at once, and he commenced to sink with alarming rapidity. A telegram was immediately dispatched to Woolwich for the Prince. Dr. Gul' was summoned from London, and Father Goddard, the Emperor's spiritual advisor, was sent for in great haste to administer the last sacraments of the church. The Emperor's private chaplain was also informed of the danger, and started for Chiselhurst. All arrived too late. The Prince was not able to see his father again alive. Dr. Gul and the clergymen just reached the park gates as the Emperor expired. The Empress, who has been most constant in her attendance, was the principal person at the bedside at the last hour. The medical advisers. Sir Henry Thompson and Drs. Couvisart and Cloren, the Emperor's old friend, Dr. Connean, and several members of the household, were also present.

the residence at Chiselhurst has been strictly closed to all but the nearest friends and relatives. The physicians state that death resulted from causes independent of the surgical operations to which the patient was subjected. The event makes a deep impression in London, where the emperor was always personally very popular with the masses. The evening journals publish long obituary expressions of mourning.

THE EMPRESS EUGENIE WEEPS CONTINUALLY, and refuses consolation. Louis, the prince imand refuses consolation. Louis, the prince im-perial, who arrived after his father died, is prostrated with grief. The emperor's death was sudden that the last sacrament was not admin sudden that the last sacrament was not admin-istered, the priest arriving after all was over. The body will be interred at Chiselhurst until it can be removed to France. The news of the emperor's death was received at a late hour yes-terday afternoon in Paris. The imperialists are profoundly affected, and appear to regard the event as the final blow to their hopes.

THE STATE LEGISLATURES YESTERDAY—
Messages of the Governors.—Governor Palmer's message was read in both branches of the Illinois legislature yesterday. The state is substantially free from debt. He discusses the proposed amendments to the criminal code, and this so that many of the measures proposed for the prevention and punishment of crime are the result of an excited state of the public mind rather than of deliberate judgment. He administers a rebuke to the rapacity of the railway corporations, and concludes with a disquisition upon the dangers of centralization.

The Indiana legislature also met yesterday and organized. The Governor will deliver his message to-day. THE STATE LEGISLATURES YESTERDAY-

THE MAN WHO SHOT JIM FISK-Why Stokes

The Man who Shot Jim Fisk—Why Stokes Thinks He ought to have a New Trial.—Counsel for Edward S. Stokes are preparing a bill of exceptions upon which to base an application for a new trial. There are twenty-eight objections to the rulings of Judge Boardman during the trial, and it is said that the bill will recite several circumstances which have come to light since the trial, including an alleged saying of one of the jurors that "Stokes should be convicted anyhow." Stokes says he has no doubt of a new trial being granted. He said to a reporter: "I tell you the whole meeting between Mr. Fisk and myself, that Saturday afternoon, was the most accidental thing possible." As regards the portion of the judge's charge which stated that it was Mr. Stokes duty as a citizen to have avoided Fisk, he said: "Why this is a regular cowardice theory. Because a man has injured you, therefore you must run away from him every time you see him. What nousense! Because you have been injured you must take to your legs every time you meet the villain who cause you have been injured you must take to your legs every time you meet the villain who has injured you. That can't be law, because it is not human nature. Besides, I did try to avoid Fisk as it was, but I hadn't time. It was growing dark when I saw Fisk coming up the stairs, and before I knew it we were engaged in conflict." Should a stay be granted on the exceptions taken during the trial, of course another cell will be allotted to him. He will be closely watched in his cell by the efficials up to a week before the time set for execution, during which week deputy sheriffs are to relieve each other, guarding him night and day.

THE ARREST OF NAVAL PAYMASTER HEALEY.—Brief mention was made in vesterday's STAR of the arrest of Paymaster Honley, of the navy, in New York. The Times of yesterday mys:—'William J. Healey, a paymaster in the United States navy, was arrested and brought before Commissioner Davenport yesterday, on a charge of conspiring with George W. Reid and others to defraud the government of $10,000, by causing to be procured and presented to the Fourth Auditor of the Treasury fraudulent vouchers. Healey was held in $10,000. The affidavit of George W. Reid, which forms the basis of the complaint which was made by Mr.
Avery Newcomb, United States Pressury agent, and upon which Healey was arrested, was objected to by the council for the accused. He eigined that it should be excluded from evidence, because Reid had been convicted of an offence which would incapacitate him from teetifying in a court of law. The further hearing in the case was then edjourned."
